

Figure 7: Fractal form. Blood vessels are an example of a fractal structures where similar patterns are observed at different scales of the form, from lower to higher magnification.