

Figure 2: Entropy of form. Form in this example is the arrangement of the balls on the floor. If we drop three balls on the floor, they can produce endless forms, with the overwhelming majority of them being a triangular arrangement (high entropy) (A). They may produce a linear form (B) on extraordinarily infrequent occasions (low entropy).